

our schools it takes a team

Everyone plays a role in making public schools great places to learn and grow.

Every day, remarkable things happen in our public schools - students have transformative moments and teachers experience incredibly rewarding moments. At the heart of these moments are the powerful relationships between teachers and students-bonds that spark curiosity, build confidence, and grow futures.

Teachers are deeply committed to the wellbeing of every student, working tirelessly to create safe, supportive spaces where children can learn, grow, and thrive. But they can't do it alone.

Everyone plays a role in making public schools great places to learn and grow.

It takes a team of teachers, parents, families, leaders, and communities working together to support our young people as they navigate an increasingly complex world.

Want to share a positive story about public education? Head over to the SASPA Website and check out the accessible resources for you to share with your community!

